PRIME MINISTER PREMIER MINISTRE

It seems to me that our age is most clearly defined in terms of rising expectations.

It invites our intelligent participation and certainly the more functional employment of our talents and energies.

One of my most gratifying experiences in recent months has been to witness the enthusiasm of Canadian youth and to learn of your involvement in so many activities.

May I encourage your efforts and wish all of you at London Teachers' College much success in the challenging years ahead.

Pierre Elliott Trudeau

MINISTER OF EDUCATION

One of the pleasant duties which I am called upon to perform as Minister of Education is to extend to the graduates of the London Teachers' College a welcome to the teaching profession in Ontario.

Your effectiveness as a teacher will be judged by your success in preparing the youth of today for roles of responsibility in industry, education, statesmanship and the professions in the highly complex world in which he will live tomorrow.

I trust that you will seek to establish sound educational objectives compatible in content and pedagogic method with the rapidly changing conditions under which we live. In keeping with the nature and the progress of scientific achievement, your authority will at times be questioned and the traditional classroom atmosphere may have to give way to more modern concepts which take into consideration changing notions regarding learning theory and greater attention to individual differences. I have every confidence that as truly professional teachers you will accept the challenge and will face the future with assurance, determined to add your contribution to the substantial achievements made by the great teachers of the past.

I wish you success in your endeavours.

Promises Fulfilled...

Dear Graduates,

Congratulations upon the successful completion of one year of teacher education. I sincerely hope that you now agree that the promises I made to you last September have been carried out.

I promised you the most strenuous school year of your educational career. I promised you the whole-hearted support, guidance, and counsel of your masters. I promised you involvement in the planning and execution of your work. Above all I promised you the opportunities for deriving the deep satisfaction of achievement through honest effort.

As well as promises, you may recall that I asked you to be aware that we offer only an orientation course in teaching. Although you have come to the end of this year you are just at the beginning of your education as a teacher. Your success as a teacher will be determined by your awareness that you must continue to work, to study, and to learn the art and the mystique of your profession.

The hopes and best wishes of the staff of London Teachers' College go with you into your classrooms.

Threefold Task...

Today, in our society, education is considered the right of every child. Students are trained for an almost innumerable variety of positions, many of which were unknown only a few years ago. Automation and increased mechanization in industry have made possible the shortening of the working day and the working week, so that a considerable amount of leisure time is available to the majority of the population. To show this new and vastly larger "leisure class" how to use their free time for their own benefit and for the benefit of their community is once more becoming a concern of education.

A threefold task faces the school today, namely:

- 1. To lead each child to seek to understand the nature of his surroundings.
- 2. To encourage each child to choose and accept as his own those ideals of conduct that a Christian, democratic society approves.
- 3. To assist each child to master those abilities that are essential to living in a changing, modern society.

Practice teaching has provided you with many opportunities to observe how various associate teachers are endeavouring to cope with this task. As you go forth to put your shoulder to the wheel of progress, your successes will be a source of continuing pride to me.

Office Staff

The rhythmic chatter of type-writers, the rustle of papers and the thump of closing file cabinets are evidence of activity in the general vicinity of the main office. Conducting the stenographical symphony are four very efficient and capable ladies dedicated to their craft. Their work is essential to the proper function of this school and their assistance is appreciated.

Linda Baker, Mrs. E. Sutcliffe, Pauline Hall, Barbara Wilkinson.

Mrs. B. Judd

No! He's not one of the office girls.

Library Staff

Mrs. I. McCallan, Miss W. Singer, Mrs. V. Edwards, Mrs. J. Gentleman.

A mass array of books, pictures and sundry printed articles are the responsibility of our four librarians. The efficient operation of any resource center relies upon the ultimate degree of organization and skill on the part of the library team. Many thanks for their co-operation and assistance.

Cafeteria Staff

Fran Lee, Marge Geddes, Bette Mundy, Sadie Fleming.

Oftentimes, we have paced wearily into the cafeteria hoping to dispell the "early morning blahs," by means of the medicinal nectar of the coffee bean. By noon the necessity of fortifying the constitution has arisen and we indulge ourselves in the cullinery delights provided by the kitchen staff. Their efforts to satisfy our nutritional needs are greatly appreciated.

The Clergy

Most people benefit to some degree from the good actions of others. Some are motivated and inspired to emulate those whom they admire. This year a group of good and dedicated men and women have come to this place each week to convey to us the sense of security in the knowledge that there is something beyond human understanding which is the source and reason for life. We would do well to conduct ourselves by their examples.

Because cleanliness is a virtue, our Maintenance Staff qualifies as a perfect example of purity. Their constant dedication to the proper care of these hallowed halls is the direct source of our pride in this building and its surroundings.

Spectrum 1969

Within the eternities of time and space there exists only one constant - change. And change as it relates to the rhyme and rhythm of the Eternal Scheme propagates itself as the source and stamina of progress. Progress, in the human analysis, is action toward the discovery and revelation of the ultimate perfect truth.

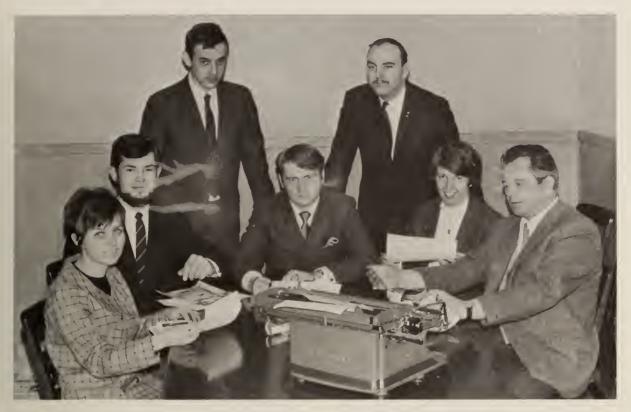

Although the human animal is a creature of reason and creativity, his existence is a paradox. He maintains absolute devotion to the premise that nothing is real or worthy of consideration unless it yields to reasonable justification. The paradox resides in the fact that humanity is itself inaccessible to interpretation. This adamant reliance upon definition negates the self-assigned purpose of man which is to progress.

Definition is not an essential entity within the realm of understanding, for the mind is capable of extending beyond the limits of explained facts. It is imperative that we, as prospective teachers, make ourselves aware of that truth.

Modern education must remain astride the ever increasing pace of progress and should avail itself to constant revision and change. It should develop a sensitivity to the interests and needs of the learner that he might gain a better understanding of himself, others, and his place within the Great Enterprise.

Prime Minister's Message

Last September, with varied back-grounds and mixed emotions, we gathered at London Teachers' College. Yet every student approached the college with a common goal, namely to enter the teaching profession.

Upon entering the teaching profession a student must master its particular methodology as well as incorporating its

There are many different approaches to teaching; yet if each approach has merit, it will conveige upon the common aim of imparting knowledge successfully and efficiently. Constant change confronting the teacher requires continuous tailoring to suit the teaching situation. Flexibility in mind and body will enable the teacher to cope with new and challenging situations. A teacher must search for an individual philosophy that will best suit the teaching situation.

Not only should the philosophy of teaching be selective and streamed but also the underlying objectives and the knowledge conveyed.

These objectives will deline our purposes and their evaluation will decide our successes.

The aims in teaching are numerous but there are aims that are basic. The democratic process must be high on the pyramid of objectives. The following poem:

"We are all blind until we see
That in the human plan,
Nothing is worth the making
If it does not make the man.
Why build these cities glorious
If man unbuilded goes?
In Vain we build the world unless
The builder also grows, "...

outlines an objective whose impact may well decide the course of the twenty-first century.

TEACHER'S KEY

Though I teach with the skill of the finest teachers. And have not understanding, 1 am become only a clever speaker and a charming entertainer. And though I understand all techniques and all methods, And though I have much training, So that I feel quite competent, But have no understanding of the way my pupils think It is not enough. And if I spend my hours in lesson preparation. And become tense and nervous with the strain But have no understanding Of the personal problems of my pupils, It is still not enough. The understanding teacher is very patient, very kind; ls not shocked when young people Bring her their confidences; Does not gossip; is not easily discouraged; Does not behave herself in ways that are unworthy, But is at all times a living example to her students Of the good way of life of which she speaks. Understanding never fails. But whether there be materials, They shall become obsolete; Whether there be methods They shall become outmoded; Whether there be techniques. They shall be abandoned; For we know only a little And can pass on to our children only a little. But when we have understanding Then all our efforts will become creative. Our influence will live forever In the lives of our pupils. When I was a child I spoke with immaturity, My emotions were uncontrolled And I behaved childishly: But now that I am an adult l must face life as it is... With courage and understanding. And now abideth Skill, devotion, understanding And the greatest of these is Understanding.

Sudden transition,
Bumped, buffeted, battered,

Drifting, looming, terrifying,

Imminent danger,
Raging, rampaging, roaring,
I am completely helpless.

THE CANDLER

Be thou men of peace.

Know the metal of thy sword to be that of wax

And, with love, melt that malicious blade

Into sweet drops of tallow which flow into the mould.

Strike the match, and its flame will soon deplete.

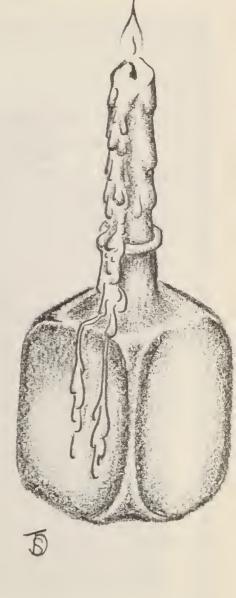

But with this magic wand

Touch the wick,

And the sword-made candle's radiance will

Enlighten the world.

It's 1969 ...and Eaton's is 100 years old. We don't feel it.

Old? Us? Just because we're a hundred years old doesn't mean that we have to feel it. In fact, we feel much more like having a party. So that's what we're doing—throwing a gigantic year-long party in every Eaton store across the country. It's going to be bright lights and happy times all the way with special shows, special events, and extra special savings for you. So come often. The party starts the minute you walk through any Eaton door. Because, after all, you are the guest of honour.

To those who struggled to give us the beginning of our professional organization we owe an immeasurable debt.

To those who have toiled during the past twenty-five years to give this organization recognition, meaning, and worth we offer our sincere appreciation.
